London gunmen reiterate demands

LONDON (UPI) — Police said today three black gunmen holding six Italian hostages for the third day in a restaurant basement prison have again demanded a plane to fly them out of Britain.

Police Commander David Helm said "They have demanded a van (truck) to be taken to Heathrow airport and a plane to fly them to the West Indies. But our attitude remains that there can be no concessions."

Boston teachers in classes again

BOSTON (UPI) — Public school teachers returned to classrooms today but their union leaders faced possible jail sentences on contempt charges in connection with the bitter six-day illegal strike.

Buses escorted by motorcycle police arrived at racially desegregated schools for the resumption of classes without incident.

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — Casey Stengel, the grand old man of baseball who managed the New York Yankees to ten pennants and seven World Series championships, died today at age 85.

Stengel died at Glendale Community Hospital of cancer of the lymph glands of the abdomen, a hospital spokesman said. (Story, p. 2)

Publity triples threats on Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon said today the publicly surrounding two recent assassination attempts on President Ford have tripled the threats against his life.

Testifying at a Senate Appropriations Committee reviewing the Secret Service protective operations, Simon said that in the first 20 days of September there have been 320 threats against the President.

New FBI offices dedicated today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford dedicated the new $125 million FBI headquarters in the memory of J. Edgar Hoover today and said a better monument will be the preservation of the law and the protection of citizens' rights.

Ford, surrounded at the outdoor platform by 7,000 FBI employees and dozens of its armed agents, praised Hoover as a "pioneer public servant."

Visit begins

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Japanese Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako today began an historic United States visit amid tight security, bringing full cycle the friendship between World War II enemies.

The 76-year-old emperor, whose 50-year reign has seen relations between the two countries swing sharply from friends to wartime foes to peace-time allies, was greeted by a rifle and drum corps dressed in American Revolutionary costumes.

Scoop offers way to blunt impact

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a Democratic presidential aspirant and a leading energy legislator, says President Ford can blunt the impact on American consumers of OPEC's weekend 10 per cent price increase by forbidding U.S. oil companies to adopt the new prices.

In addition to recommending a clamp on domestic oil companies, he also urged the President to immediately lift his $2 a barrel tariff on imported oil.

Zarb warns of tighter fuel crunch

NEW YORK (UPI) — Another embargo by Arab oil producing states would force the United States into an energy allocation program that would "make the last one look like a picnic," Federal Energy Administrator Francis T. Zarb said Tuesday.

"You won't have to worry about long lines at the gas station because there won't be enough gas to have a line," Zarb said.

U.S. Poles agree on grain sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has agreed in principle to a long-term arrangement for sale of grain and other farm products to Poland and is interested in making similar deals with other purchasers, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says.

Butz and Polish Agriculture Minister Kazimierz Bartkowski announced after a meeting Monday they were "agreed on the principles of a supply understanding."

Blue Lakes block plan resurrected

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In an attempt to cut down traffic congestion at North Five Points, state highway officials are taking action on an old plan to shut off Blue Lakes Boulevard.

The construction of an Albertson's supermarket on the old Washington School property may substantially increase traffic congestion according to government officials.

Everett Kidner, state highway district engineer, said quick action could be taken to shut off Blue Lakes south of the North Five Points if the project received community and city support.

Originally proposed several years ago, the highway district's plan has been to widen and straighten out North Five Points as well as close off Blue Lakes, making a four-legged intersection out of North Five Points.

Public opposition at a hearing several years ago forced the highway division to scrap its plans temporarily. Now the department plans a public information meeting for the end of October, with a hearing sometime next spring.

If no construction is planned, however, the division doesn't have to go through the hearing procedure, Kidner said.

"If enough people decide this is the thing to do, we could do it" fairly quickly, Kidner said.

Darrell Creamer, real estate coordinator for Albertson's, shed little light on the corporation's plans for the site.

Creamer said as yet there was no site design, no building plan, no architect, and so on. "All that stuff comes out much later," he said today.

According to a Twin Falls City engineer, the best plan for the intersection — the busiest in town — would be to have the store entrances on Elm Street, not on Addison or Blue Lakes.

Apparently, Albertson's has made no contacts with city or state highway officials as yet concerning the congestion.

Kidner said the state officials will "do our best to work with them."

The company's plans don't need the approval of local zoning, but a building permit and proposed curb cuts for street access must be okayed by city officials.

Because Addison and Blue Lakes are state highways, the state must also approve any curb cuts for entrances and exits, a city engineer said.

According to a 1975 traffic count, more than 18,000 vehicles per day pass along the new Albertson's property on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, and more than 10,000 vehicles go by the land on Addison Avenue East, a city engineer said.

Ford asks fast action on US Sinai observers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today appealed to Congress for approval "no later than Friday" to send 200 American observers into the Sinai Desert between Egypt and Israel.

The request triggered an effort by lawmakers to speed up action on the controversial matter, but indications were it would be at least early next week before a final decision could be made.

Shortly after Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott released the text of a presidential letter, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee agreed to an accelerated schedule for considering a resolution of approval.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said the committee will hear a long line of witnesses this week and meet Friday to vote on a proposed resolution of approval for the American civilian monitors to the Israeli-Egyptian accord. The full Senate could vote on Saturday or next Monday, he predicted.

Congress is expected to give approval to the U.S. monitors; but the matter has been delayed

— "This process will not begin, however, until cautious. All his sources of financial aid have been cut off. The state, the federal agencies, and the insurance companies are no longer paying for any of his medical needs.

As a result, Jack E. Nipper is a cautious man. It is a necessary trait because Jack is a hemophiliac, a "bleeder" who can suffer excruciating pain from the slightest bump. His blood lacks a clotting element which stops the flow of a cut or an internal injury.

Without periodic injections of an expensive blood concentrate, he can bleed to death from any injury.

And Jack now has another reason to be cautious. He makes about $40 per month.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare (DHW) stopped helping Jack two years ago "because of Social Security income and employment," according to Theo Murdock, regional manager of medical and financial assistance for DHW.

The Social Security Administration halted financial aid a year ago because Jack is "earning too much."

"In effect, his work knocks him over the income limit and he gets cut out of any help," said Roger Lileks, a Social Security operations manager.

Chicago guard tight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service put special protection arrangements into action today for President Ford's trip to Chicago and Omaha, and Chicago police said they would "experiment" with portable weapons to check crowds.

White House officials refused to detail the security measures for Ford's two-day trip beginning later in the day, but acknowledged there were no scheduled appearances in or near big public crowds in the two cities.

Chicago police said, however, they would use portable, airport-style weapons detectors to check crowds near the presidential hotel. The detectors are square hand-held and have a loop on one end.

Chicago police also said they received a telephone call today from a man who said he had knowledge of a plot to assassinate Ford upon his arrival in Chicago today. The information was turned over to the Secret Service.

The President will fly home late Wednesday.

KETCHUM — A freak two-car accident early Monday south of here sent one man through the window of a trailer house into the bed of a frightened 18-year-old girl.

According to police reports, Chris Wall, 21, Rupert, hit the back of a vehicle driven by Larry Bekkedahl, 21, California, about 1 a.m. Monday morning as Bekkedahl was turning into the Chalet Trailer Court.

Both vehicles were southbound on US Highway 93. Bekkedahl was turning left, into the trailer court when Wall, who was trying to pass him, struck the slow-moving vehicle in the left rear, the report said.

The Wall vehicle was traveling at an estimated 80 to 100 miles an hour, the report said.

Bekkedahl was thrown from his vehicle which continued south rolling over and striking a pole fence.

Wall also was thrown from his vehicle, striking a trailer house owned by Joe Gaumond.

The force of Wall's body caused an estimated $400 damage to Gaumond's trailer.

Rodney Couch, 19, Rupert, a passenger in the Wall vehicle, came to rest beside the Arnold trailer but did not touch it. There was a reported $1,000 damage to Arnold's trailer.

Bekkedahl and Wall were in stable condition today at Moritz Community Hospital. Couch, who received multiple cuts and bruises, was released from the hospital Monday.

Two passengers in the Bekkedahl vehicle, Bill Sprout, 22, and Douglas Heckendorn, 25, both Ketchum, were not injured. Wall was charged with driving while intoxicated and with possession of marijuana.

Rescuers rescued from river

FIREMAN Robert Dale, in water at left, and Sheriff's deputies Beverly Tripp and Donald Stark, in boat, were involved in a rescue attempt on the flood-swollen Susquehanna River at Binghamton, N.Y., Monday when their boat overturned. Stark gripped the outboard motor, right, while Tripp held on to him until they were pulled aboard another boat, along with Dale. Three firemen died, two while trying to recover the body of the third, in rescuing two young men whose rubber raft capsized as they tried to ride it over a dam. (UPI) over alleged secret promises made by the United States to Egypt and Israel in order to get the agreement between the two countries.

The committee sought to resolve its current dispute with the administration by calling on Ford to inform the panel "of all assurances and undertakings."

The committee then invited Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to appear on Wednesday with all relevant documentation, after which the panel will determine what documents to make public and how.

Ford, in his letter to Scott, urged that congressional action "be completed as early as possible and no later than Friday, Oct. 3" or Congress will risk the unravelling of the Middle East accord.

"The first step in the implementation of the basic agreement under the timetable negotiated and agreed to by Egypt and Israel in Geneva Sept. 22 is scheduled to be taken Oct. 5," Ford's letter said.

"This process will not begin, however, until the Congress has acted on the proposed United States role in the Early Warning System. Delay in congressional action will, therefore, delay implementation of the basic agreement.

"It will risk causing the lengthy and difficult negotiations on the entire five-month timetable to be reopened. It will prevent a lessening of the risks of war. If any reason the agreement should fail, the responsibility would be heavy indeed."

Scott said, "I think it will be part before the horse to enter into lengthy discussions on every word of these agreements before they have actually become agreements. I think it goes beyond the advice and consent of Congress."

Ford's letter said he met the congressional leadership weeks ago to discuss the agreement and to request quick action.

"All relevant papers and all U.S. commitments to the agreement have been submitted to the appropriate committees of the Congress," Ford said.

US economy index levels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's index of leading economic indicators leveled off in August to end a five-month upward cycle, the Commerce Department said today.

Many economists say the index shows which direction the economy will take in future months. But the zero change from July-left the next swing in question.

The index was unchanged in January, 1973, before moving downward to signal the longest recession in post-World War II economic history. But it was also flat in June, 1972, before rising to forecast period of economic prosperity.

Commerce said the index was unchanged in August because of mixed results among the 11 available indicators. Five rose, five fell and one — the worker layoff rate — was unchanged.

Commerce said the index stood at 101.7 in August — matching July's figure exactly — compared with the 1967 base of 100.

The July index increase was revised upward to 2.8 per cent. The preliminary report last month had shown the increase from June was 1.7 per cent, second lowest rise since the upward cycle began in March.

Stock prices, which fell 7.4 per cent for the Commerce index, were the major reason for downward pressure in August. Stock prices were concerned over rising interest rates and the end of the OPEC oil price freeze in September.

Strongest upward movement resulted from a 6 per cent growth in retail and wholesale sales reporting slower deliveries — an indication that manufacturers couldn't keep up with orders.

Commerce said the other four positive factors in August included an 18-minute increase in the average workweek for factory employees, a $20 million increase in the nation's money supply; a $333 million increase in new orders for manufacturing, consumer products and raw materials, and a $50 million increase in new plant and equipment orders.

Cleric hits abort rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cardinal Terence Cooke Tuesday criticized a proposed Pentagon policy to make it easier for servicemen's wives to obtain abortions at military hospitals.

"This change of policy for military hospitals, if it is accurately reported, ignores the right to life of the unborn child, and accepts the destruction of unborn human life under the auspices of the federal government," said Cooke, chairman of the Catholic Bishops' Pro-life Committee.

Stengelese creator dies at 85

CLYDELA, Calif. (UPI) — Pastime, for whom organized baseball waived the rule restricting a niche in the hall of fame as the game's winningest manager but earned the nation's affection for captaining a band of entertaining losers and creatively dismembering the English language, died today at age 85.

Stengel, who won more pennants and world series victories than any other manager, died at 11:58 p.m. MDT in Glendale Community Hospital of cancer of the lymph glands in his abdomen.

In the 1940s he introduced into the Basin Ball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., He, Roberto Clemente and Lou Gehrig were the only participants in the National American League Pennants between 1949 and 1960, and seven World Series, including five in a row.

But after he was fired in 1960 at age 70 for being "too old," he stole the nation's heart by coming back as the first mentor of the hapless New York Mets.

The Mets never got out of the cellar in his five years as manager. His exasperation provoked him into a rebuke to the players that became one of his most famous utterances: "Can't anybody here play this game?"

And although the Mets pieced a form of misfortune, malfeasance and nonfeasance on the diamond, the fans loved them, turning out to see Stengel's losers in greater and more profitable numbers than the competent but declining Yankees could draw.

He gave the language a merciless drubbing, an inspired restructuring and the word "Stengelese" to describe what had done to it.

Called before Sen. Kefauver's committee considering organized baseball's exemption from the antitrust laws, Stengel clarified the situation:

"As to why baseball wants this bill, I would say I would not know, but I would say the reason why they would want it passed is to keep baseball from becoming an independent baseball."

"I am in the baseball business and it has been run cleaner than was ever put out in 100 years at the present time."

In later years, Stengel enveloped "Metsmen" games wearing in his uniform the emblem of all the teams he had been associated with in his historic career. He quit baseball in 1965 on doctor's orders, but when he was asked to sign autographs, it was clear where his heart lay, despite his years as a winner: In the proud signature:

"From 1949 to 1953, the dynasty routinely won five straight World Series crowns."

"Casey Stengel, New York Mets, Hall of Famer."

Stengel broke into the majors with Brooklyn in 1912, then went to Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and finished with Boston.

He guided the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Boston Braves and the New York Mets in the NL and the New York Yankees in the American League in his quarter century of major league managing.

While with the Yankees, he made superb use of such Hall of Famers as Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford. Stengel's teams virtually took over baseball between 1949 and 1960.

In his 12 seasons with the Yankees, he never finished lower than third.

Stengel led the team to 10 AL pennants — tying his idol and model, John McGraw — and seven World Series championships. The Yankees finished second in their other season under Stengel.

From 1949 to 1953, the dynasty routinely won five straight World Series crowns."

Oil price controls extended

PRESIDENT Ford signed a 45 day extension of domestic oil price controls Monday. He coupled the action with another warning to Congress that it must speed up its work on an overall energy policy for the nation. (UPI)

Train-truck accident

THIS Gray Lines cabover truck loaded with packaged potatoes was hit by a train at about 4:10 p.m. Saturday as it was crossing tracks at the Ore-Ida plant. The truck was driven by Bobby J. Stephens of Noel, Mo., who was not injured.

Burley wrecks reported

BURLEY — A train demolished the trailer on a truck just west of here Saturday evening.

Another truck accident occurred west of here early Sunday.

Neither driver was injured but both wrecks threw vegetables on the road and surrounding area.

The train accident happened about 4:10 p.m. Saturday as a Bray Lines cabover truck was coming out of the Ore-Ida plant with a load of packed frozen potatoes.

Driver Bobby J. Stephens, Noel, Mo., told a Cassia County deputy sheriff he saw a truck crossing the tracks into Ore-Ida and assumed the way was clear.

He started across the tracks and the train hit the truck's trailer, demolishing the $30,000 piece of equipment. The trailer was cut in two and pieces scattered with the packaged potatoes.

The train suffered an estimated $2,000 damage, almost leaving the tracks before it settled firmly on them again. Engineer was W. K. Woodworth, an Uncle.

Corn was scattered and a telephone pole damaged about 3 a.m. Sunday three miles west of Burley.

Juan Gonzalez, 27, Rupert, told a deputy he was headed north on 300 West Road when his truck wheels caught the shoulder of the road. He overcorrected and the truck tipped on its side, dumping a load of corn on the telephone pole.

Damage to the tilted pole was estimated at $35. Truck damaged was not estimated.

Details of heart attack given for Buhl chamber

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

BUHL — Details of a heart attack and open heart surgery captured the attention of the Buhl Chamber of Commerce members Monday noon.

Marlon Ambrose, past mayor, chamber president and currently president of the local Kiwanis Club, told of his initial heart attack in April, 1964, how he lived for 10 years with his heart defect and finally the surgery to repair two bypasses he underwent May, 1974, in a Boise hospital.

"I'm one of the lucky ones," Ambrose said. His message is simple: all heart attack victims have a chance of survival and he has learned a lesson, crusade through his personal influence to convince people to not ignore such warnings.

Getting to a doctor for regular checkups is important, he said, but this is no guarantee of avoiding a heart attack. What is vital, Ambrose says, is to realize repeated chest pains, especially if they spread to the arm, back or jaws, nausea and shortness of breath are warning signals before an attack. Pressure in the chest is another symptom. "You feel like you're going to explode," he said.

The Buhl man was sitting at his breakfast table 11 years ago last spring and had just told his wife, "I've got to get to work." About 10 minutes later, he said, he came to and Dr. Charles Marsh was working on him. He said he not only had a doctor and ambulance promptly, but was in intensive care in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital within 45 minutes. Dr. Marsh has since moved to the east.

He said according to the National Heart Association, based on 1972 statistics of 700,000 persons who died of heart attacks that year, half died before reaching the hospital.

"These are national figures," Ambrose said, "the rest of this statement is just my own idea. But it seems to me if you have a heart attack in Buhl you'd have about one chance in four."

Ambrose also discussed hereditary aspects of heart disease, first of his family, died within a year and half of heart related problems. He said his wife too much animal fat in their diet was a contributing factor in his family.

Manning said he had talked to Poindexter and Hunt. He said warrants were expected to be issued today.

Grading plans for K mart presented to Burley aides

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Grading plans for Burley's new K mart retail outlet were presented to the Burley council Monday night.

K mart plans to lease a 40,000-square-foot building when it is constructed north of Burley. The site will be developed by Jeffrey H. Tamplin Inc. of Los Angeles—Blakely Engineers Inc. doing design work.

The council agreed Monday to accept dedication of West Third Street North, but attached stipulations on paving and other improvements on both West Third and West Second North.

Those two streets bound the property on the north and south. The building will front on a parking lot off Overland Avenue. The property extends west to Miller Avenue.

The council's stipulations on street dedication of West Third include payment from Overland to Miller with curb and gutter on the South side of the street. It also required curb and gutter along West Second to the end of the property line, pavement to the proposed building and an agreement to share in paving costs on the remainder of West Second when the city evaluates it.

K mart and Tamplin had proposed paving to the building, along with other improvements.

K mart hoped to be in the new building by next year Monday's special council meeting was called to speed construction work in view of the extended fall weather.

The area is north of the Burley Paul Bridge over the Snake River and across Overland from Volvo Inc.

The surrounding area has been developed into subdivisions; businesses and motels with convention centers since Interstate 80 was completed to the north.

Tamplin holds the property in escrow and has been working on an intensive market study for about a year. The company has built several stores for K mart.

Councilman Loy Taylor was particularly concerned about getting agreement on paving. He would have preferred to have West Second paved all the way to.

City Atty. William Parsons pointed out that Second is already a dedicated street and the city has never for paving the whole length. Mayor Charles Shadwick remarked that the city will be "gaining quite a bit" with the paving and improvements on Third.

Councilman Jerry Vegvart commented that dedication of Third is necessary for development of that area.

Councilmen proposed the stipulations that were adopted.

The plans show a building with 40,000 square feet. The parking area on Overland is about 225 feet by 330 feet.

Treatment center plans eyed

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

GOODING — A Bliss man and the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare are looking into the possibility of establishing an alcoholics treatment center at the former tuberculosis hospital in Gooding.

Archie Walker, Bliss, has arranged to bring out next month an expert from the Johnson Institute in Minneapolis, Minn., to examine the feasibility of using the Gooding facility for such a center. IAW, their plans to meet with the expert, Walker and several community leaders to discuss plans.

Walker said the plan for the facility now is "nebulous" and in a "conceptual stage of development." He said creation of a center will depend partly on what the state wants to do with the Gooding facility.

"They have the facility. The ground is too high to flood it out. They can't burn it down. What are they going to do with it?" he said. He said there would have to be some negotiations with the state land board to see if space in the former hospital might be available.

Walker said he would "presume" that the facility should be run as a private institution and have paying guests as well as those referred by the county and state.

Challenge expected in Minidoka vote

Two council seats will be before the Rupert voters on Nov. 4. They are held by Ted Cresson and Clark Cameron. Cresson was appointed to fill the seat left by William Patty or Tania?

Is she Patty, or Tania?

Has the granddaughter of William Randolph Hearst finally come home after a dramatic rescue from the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnapped, brainwashed and terrorized the poor little rich girl, pressing her to the edge of insanity?

Or is she really Tania, the newborn "revolutionary feminist" whose grinning face and upraised fist became household images after her capture? Is this the ideological gun moll now playing a crafty game, pretending insanity and bedrock allegiance to her parents' values in order to escape an extended prison term?

Is she to become the new hero of the radical left, or is she to be transmogrified into the new darling of the TV talk shows?

We doubt either view is very accurate. We doubt Patty/Tania has what it takes to be a star either for the radicals or for the establishment.

She comes off more like a weak-willed sheep which can be redirected by the slightest nudge from her fellows. One day the sheep responded to the expectations of its wealthy parents. The next day the sheep grazes comfortably in the pastures of the radical underground.

Even after her capture, she seems to shift from conversation to conversation. She's the good little girl to her parents one minute, but a shifty radical laying out her plans to her fiery friends the next.

After so much flip-flopping between mutually exclusive world views, neither world will fully believe Tania/Patty again.

She may end up pitted or scorned, but as a sheep, not as a hero.

Time on Nixon side

Salt Lake Tribune

Time may be the crucial factor in the ongoing dispute over who owns the official documents which accumulated during Richard M. Nixon's five and one-half year presidency.

Mr. Nixon is challenging a law which, in effect, gives the more than 42 million papers and tapes to the federal government and directs the Services Administration (GSA) to draw up regulations governing access to them.

The former President stated in a legal brief that only he and members of his immediate family can determine which of the disputed documents can be made public. The Justice Department argues that Mr. Nixon could not be trusted to preserve records of his administration. The department's brief said the GSA should retain custody of the material.

Mr. Nixon is 62 years old. His suit challenging constitutionality of the law depriving him of access to the papers is now before a three-judge federal district court. A decision is not expected until sometime in 1976 and if, as expected, it is appealed to the Supreme Court it will be 1977 at the earliest before a final decision is reached.

Even then the decision may not be "definitive," to use a term popularized by Mr. Nixon in connection with an earlier court ruling on disputed tapes.

By the time Mr. Nixon, if he wins the suit, gets his hands on the papers he could be approaching 70. Assuming his health holds up, the Nixon family could then begin going through those 42 million documents and readjusting 88 reels of the White House tapes.

At the rate of 10,000 documents a day, for 365 days a year, it would require at least 11 years to sort out the papers and tapes. And Mr. Nixon would be about 80.

Evaluation of the papers won't go much faster if the GSA gets the job. A GSA proposal now before Congress would divide the documents and tapes into categories after examination by government archivists, a task estimated to take years.

Unless the court or Congress comes up with a shortcut, the problem of sorting the papers to delete private, personal and secret contents will have solved itself. Nobody, except a few scholars, will care anymore.

Moynihan's performance at UN session pleasing

The combination of dignity, ebullience, and purpose shown by Daniel Patrick Moynihan at the United Nations is the nearest thing to a gift of pleasure we have taken since the formulation of that Tower of Babel.

One associates the UN, in memory, as the place where American representatives regularly apologize for Thomas Jefferson's having owned slaves, which ends up being the direct cause of poverty in Liberia. And yet as the years went on it became clear that the United Nations could never be used, and probably never could be used, as a genuine political instrument.

No American Ambassador would ever go to the General Assembly, address the distinguished "junta" of the so-called 77 intelligent nations of the Third World, and say:

"Gentlemen: My government recommends that you go home and tell your people to get off their behinds and start to work. That your politicians cut down the level of their conspicuous consumption — that, for instance, requires General Mobutu to travel here with 66 personal attendants — and while you're at it, we suggest you give a few moments each day to the contemplation of the entirely problematic future of your everlasting souls."

The only thing that you can get away with is flashes of genuine spirit, on those few issues in which the United States has only two alternatives: total moral capitulation, or fight.

Moynihan did this recently and, as expected, he was faxed it to Meet the Press, by Paul Hoffman of the New York Times. The exchange is as brazen as a speech by Patrick Henry.

Hoffman began by saying that he had been in Lima, Peru a few weeks ago, at which the Third World had met to frame its demands upon the United States — eating and drinking their way (I supply the detail, not Hoffman) right through a revolution in the host country, which is less noticeable to any of the 77 than the failure of the wine waiter to refill a glass — when somebody began circulating a red-hot document.

It was "a diplomatic note of the United States to the government of President Nyere and the diplomatic note says," said Hoffman darkly, "that if the Tanzanian representative to the United Nations votes against the United States on the issue of Puerto Rico, the United States would consider this a flagrant interference into United States internal affairs and an unfriendly act," and this newspaper, the Daily News of Tanzania, has a comment and says that is "a rude and intimidatory act." Now my question is: Was this that new strategy toward the Third World that you have advocated? Is that an example of it?

WILLIAM F.

Moynihan was, manifestly, prepared. He began by abjuring equivocation.

"It must assuredly is. We did not intend it as a rude act. It wasn't. We intended it to have consequences. It did."

He explained: "Now, let's speak clearly about what we are talking about. There are things which no nation can do, whether it is a big nation or a small one, without producing some response from the United States.

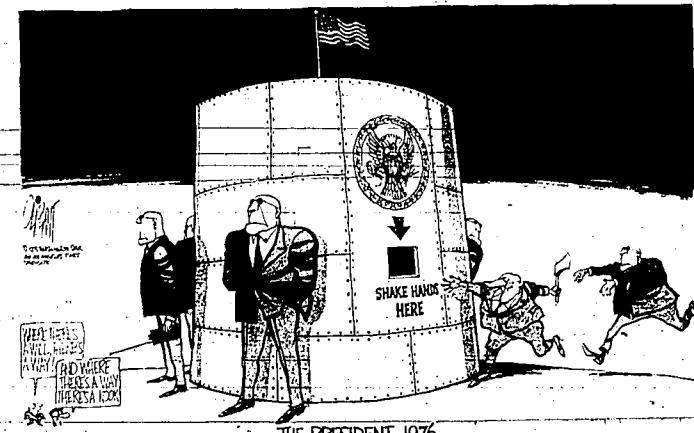

"Remember," Moynihan was now the professor, back at Harvard, "we are talking in this case about a resolution which, in effect, authorized an insurgency movement in the United States. It called for us to stop 'political persecutions' in Puerto Rico — where there are free elections regularly and recurrently with respect to independence — and formally recognize the National Liberation Movement of Puerto Rico having the same status as the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"This committee of 24 consists of 16 police states, four democracies and four in between. We are not about to be lectured by police states on the processes of electoral democracy. They are impugning our democracy. They are threatening to start an insurrection in this country. And that we regard as an unfriendly act, and we told them so . . . and we beat them."

It isn't only that Moynihan was clearly right in what he did, and entirely compellingly right in the way he explained it. He has in fact increased the prestige of the United States within the United Nations; and that too is right.

Mother's tennis has single redeeming feature

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The explosion of tennis in the United States has produced all sorts of innovations in the game.

One of the most exciting is called Mother's Tennis. It differs from regular tennis in that it requires not only four players but also a number of children, several dogs and an occasional irate husband.

The game is played on a regular court with two players on each side. But the thrill comes not from hitting the ball back and forth but from the unexpected intervention of children and dogs onto the court during play.

I was introduced to Mother's Tennis at Martha's Vineyard this summer, and this is how it went:

One of the mothers was about to serve the ball when her 7-year-old child ran up to the fence and shouted, "Mummy, Johnny has climbed on the roof and he's crying because he can't get down."

"Well, tell him to stay up there until I finish the set," she said.

"He says he's afraid of falling."

"Tell him to hang on the chimney."

A few minutes later during a heated volley a large black Labrador walked across the court.

The rules of Mother's Tennis say play must be stopped when a dog comes on the court.

We all stopped while one of the mothers shouted at the dog, "Parkinson, go home."

Parkinson sat down next to the net and stared at a list of the sponsors for the wildlife benefit next week. I need min to get the printer right away."

"The list is in my car. I'll get it." Sally went to her car while the rest of us kept swinging our rackets in the air to keep warm.

Game was about to resume when Lucy's 3-year-old walked out on the court and sat on the base line.

"Peter, please don't sit on the base line," Lucy begged. "Go over there by the bench."

Peter just sat there, scratching himself.

Lucy was becoming angry. "Peter, if you don't get off the court I'm going to give you a good spanking."

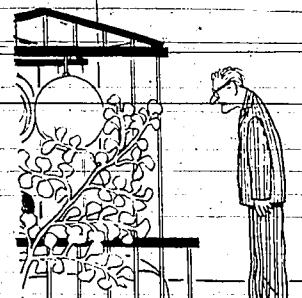

Peter cursed his lips and then started to cry.

Peter made a dive for him, but he escaped and ran to the other side of the net.

He was finally grabbed by one of the other mothers and was dragged howling and kicking off the court. He didn't stop screaming for the rest of the morning.

During the set one husband showed up looking for his keys, and two more dogs appeared on the court — one in heat.

It was a typical Mother's Tennis match, and no different than any I played all summer. The beauty of Mother's Tennis and where it differs from regular tennis is that no one keeps score. Who can remember?

"Even if Jerry backed me right now for Vice President in '76, I don't know if I could get to sleep in this thing!"

Lives of 3 California women parallel, differ

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — All three were shaped by San Francisco's counter-cultures of drugs and radical politics.

All three picked up the gun and tried to change history.

All three failed.

All three gained the attention of the world.

All three could end the rest of their lives in jail.

Three are women affecting the contours and shapes of a decade of social change.

But there the similarities end for:

—Patty Hearst, a wealthy heiress converted by kidnappers, either voluntarily or by brainwashing, into an "urban guerrilla."

—Lynette "Squeaky"

Fromme, a drug-dazed dropout following a guru of "heller skeller" sex and death.

—Sara Jane Moore, a middle-aged misfit finding a place and a profit on the fringe of the leftwing.

In 17 short days of September—in cities less than 100 miles apart in northern California—a 19-month chase ended—with Miss Hearst's capture and Miss Fromme and Miss Moore allegedly tried to assassinate President Ford.

A year and a half after she was dragged naked half-naked from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment, Patty Hearst was captured 10 miles away in a San Francisco apartment by FBI agents.

During the interval, the 21-year-old granddaughter of newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst took part in

The affidavit filed by her lawyers said Miss Hearst was slipping into insanity and brainwashed to the point that her criminal actions during her 19 months of flight were beyond her control.

She said she first returned to the real world when she hugged her father, mother and sisters in jail. In the affidavit, she said she wanted to go home with her parents and was "completely convinced of the love and affection of her family and that she will find safety and comfort in its midst."

But during a tape-recorded jail conversation with a girl friend, she told a different story, saying she didn't want to be "a prisoner in my parents' home."

She also told the old friend, Patricia Tobin, that she now had a "revolutionary feminist perspective." She also disclosed in the conversation that she had been living in the San Francisco hideout where she was captured with a 27-year-old householder named Steven Solliah.

Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, 26, a member of the murderous Charles Manson family, pointed a .45-caliber Colt automatic at President Ford Sept. 5 as he walked across the California Capitol grounds at Sacramento. The gun, although loaded, failed to fire.

Miss Fromme, indicted on federal charge of attempting to assassinate the President, was ruled capable last week of aiding in her own defense, and given permission to act as her own attorney.

After her arrest, she told a reporter she had to try to assassinate Ford because nobody paid attention to what she was saying.

The tiny, red-haired woman was thrown out of her home by her father at age 16 and migrated to San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district short again.

Miss Moore, reported to be a mother of at least five youngsters, who was treated for mental problems in 1950, was ordered to undergo psychiatric tests to determine whether she was competent to stand trial on attempted assassination charges.

In an interview, Miss Moore linked her act with the arrest of Miss Hearst, which she said had a tremendous impact on me."

From her jail cell she asked to see Elton Hume of the Los Angeles Times. The two had become acquainted when the reporter was doing a story on radicals in California.

"There comes a point when the only way you can make a statement is to pick up a gun," Miss Moore said in the interview.

But she added that she was glad the President did not die.

"It was a kind of ultimate protest against the system," she said.

Although she told West Coast acquaintances about an aristocratic background, she actually is the daughter of a chemical company maintenance engineer and grew up in a blue-collar neighborhood outside Charleston, W.Va.

She abandoned four children from an early marriage with her parents during the 1950s. At the time of the assassination attempt, her 9-year-old son was attending school in San Francisco.

Miss Moore surfaced in the Bay Area during the Hearst food giveaway, working as a volunteer leader in the hastily created "People in Need" program.

Her contacts during that period led her into left-wing politics and a role as an FBI informant. She was involved with WJLB "Poppy" Jackson, a leader of the United Prisoners Union who was shot dead in a parked car on a city street earlier this summer.

during its drug-drenched heyday with a young drifter named Charles Manson. She later estimated taking the least 1,000 trips on LSD and other drugs.

Manson was convicted of masterminding seven murders in Los Angeles in 1969, including that of movie starlet Sharon Tate, as part of a "heller skeller" terror plot that he expected to lead to a race war that would eventually catapult him into a ruling position in the United States.

During the two trials, Miss Fromme — whose high-pitched voice won her the sobriquet "Squeaky" — acted as the Manson family spokesman.

She settled with another Manson family alumnus in Sacramento where Manson was held in nearby Folsom Prison.

Miss Fromme and roommate Sandra Good, 31, organized over environmental damage, prepared lists of corporate targets in the family's "war" against polluters and presented the news media with rambling broadsides.

"Well, you know, when people around you treat you like a child and pay no attention to the things you say, you have to do something," she told the falter.

Seventeen days after the attempt to assassinate President Ford in Sacramento, Sara-Jean Moore, 45, fired a shot at the President from a crowd outside the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco. It missed.

A former Marine knocked Miss Moore's gunhand down and a city policeman wrestled the .38-caliber pistol away from her before she could get off another shot.

Miss Moore was charged with attempted murder.

Remodeling applauded

Editor, Times-News: I don't know how many area residents have had the opportunity to visit the newly remodeled Twin Falls Public Library, but if they haven't stopped by, they certainly owe it to themselves to do so in the near future.

The new library is well-organized and conveniently arranged so that a person may gain rapid access to an abundance of material available in his particular field of interest. In addition, the new building is attractive and spacious inside. It has a comfortable, relaxing atmosphere that helps to motivate a person's curiosity.

The new Twin Falls Public Library is certainly an indispensable asset to our community, and I think that we owe a vote of appreciation to the capable staff of the library for the excellent work they are doing to help stimulate intellectual and cultural growth in our area.

match the social profiles of earlier assassins.

"It seems to me that if you look at the social profiles of many of these people, the kinds of people they were, their social backgrounds, you find they are very similar to the situation of Sara Moore," she said, lit a telephone interview.

"They're losers. They are really not trusted by some of the people or causes to which they claim affiliation," Dr. Simon said. "They are not integrated members of those movements. They are not perceived as reliable members of those groups." She also said that the influence of Manson or Miss Fromme might make her case unique.

She is professor of sociology at the University of Illinois, Urbana, and author of "The Contemporary Women and Crime," published earlier this year by the National Institute of Mental Health.

Dr. Simon said Miss Moore particularly fits the patterns seen by some of the assassins of earlier presidents.

"It seems to me that if you look at the social profiles of many of these people, the kinds of people they were, their social backgrounds, you find they are very similar to the situation of Sara Moore," she said, lit a telephone interview.

"They're losers. They are really not trusted by some of the people or causes to which they claim affiliation," Dr. Simon said.

As far as Miss Fromme is concerned, the sociologist said, "She, too, we see something that is attached to all kinds of radical groups, but who really is not perceived as an integrated member of those groups." She also said that the influence of Manson or Miss Fromme might make her case unique.

Simon said there has been a large increase recently in the number of women who participate in criminal activities, but she said these are mostly property offenses, larceny, embezzlement, fraud and forgery. She said women generally are not going into crimes of violence.

She said she does not think the cases of Miss Moore and Miss Fromme indicate a trend. "I don't attach much importance to the fact that they are women," she said.

SLA tied to heist, bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Hearst and three other members of the radical terrorist group found in a San Francisco Bay area bombings, killing and severing San Francisco "safe houses" may link Patricia Hearst and three other members of the radical terrorist group found in a San Francisco Bay area bombings, killing and severing San Francisco "safe houses" may link Patricia when the FBI filed in U.S. District Court an inventory of the items agents found in the two houses after they arrested Miss Hearst, Wendy Yoshimura, William Harris and his wife, Sept. 18 in San Francisco. The inventory was returned with the FBI's search warrant.

In a related development, attorneys for Miss Hearst, made a formal request in court for her transfer from the San Mateo County Jail in nearby Redwood City to the McAuley Neuropsychiatric Institute at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco. The motion, said confinement in the jail was "dangerous and hazardous to her health."

Miss Hearst, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President William Randolph Hearst, was arrested by police in her Berkeley, Calif., apartment Feb. 4, 1971. Later in tape-recorded communiques she renounced her past life and said she was joining the SLA.

Miss Hearst and Miss Yoshimura were staying at a house in the city's Mission District at the time of the arrest and the Harrisites were picked up nearby.

The 25-page inventory said a 9mm pistol and 31 live rounds of ammunition, $157.28 in currency and coins, a green scarf, newspaper clippings about SLA members Joseph Remiro and Russell Little and a New World Liberation Front communique dated Sept. 12, 1975, were among the items found in Miss Hearst's house.

Found in the Harrisites' house were several guns, three pipe bombs and the components for bombs as well as University of California library books on explosives.

On April 21, a Crocker Bank branch in Carmichael, Calif., a suburb of Sacramento, was robbed by several persons. A woman was shot and killed. The robbers got $18,000.

Sources said the cash found in the Hearst house included a packet of $1 bills with serial numbers matching those on bills taken in the holdup. They also said one of the robbers wore a green scarf. And, they said, 9mm ammunition was found at the bank.

In a dissent, Reps. Robert Giampi, D-Conn., and David Orey, D-Wis., said: "While we recognize the need for a high degree of secrecy in counterintelligence activities, we also recognize the inherent dangers of 'secrecy' in government through degradation of the basic right of the people to know how their government functions." They said a test amendment will be offered to allow the House to decide whether or not it wants the total budget figure for the CIA released.

The defense bill would allow the Pentagon to spend $91 billion between now and next July and $22 billion more between July and September, 1976, as Congress changes how the government's fiscal year is calculated.

Agents declined to comment on the inventory, but a Sacramento County Sheriff's spokesman said: "There are some things in the labs at the FBI that could make a strong case against them."

The cause of the crash was not immediately known. But rescue workers said they believed the Malev Hungarian Airlines plane may have exploded before plunging 5,000 feet into the choppy sea shortly before 4 a.m.

The three-engine, Soviet-made Tupolev 154 jet was on a flight from Budapest to Beirut with 54 passengers and a crew of 10.

At late morning, most of the bodies had been recovered. All were mangled and naked, leading to speculation that an explosion may have torn off their clothes before the actual crash.

There was no sign of attempts to inflate life vests or rafts.

Guests in Beirut's sea-front hotels reported hearing a thunderous explosion and seeing a bright flash of light at about the time of the crash.

By the time the first coast guard rescue boats arrived at dawn, all of the plane's heavy wreckage, including its black flight box, had sunk to the bottom and was feared lost in 1,200 feet of water.

Rescuers in raw boats sifted through the lighter wreckage scattered over a half-mile area.

Douglas on bench again

WASHINGTON — Justice William O. Douglas returned to work at the Supreme Court Monday.

He joined the eight other justices in the first of a week-long series of private conferences to discuss new cases that had arrived at the court during the summer recess.

The court formally opens its new term next Monday.

Douglas, who will be 77 years old on Oct. 16, had missed much of last term because of the effects of a stroke he suffered last Dec. 31.

An aide to Douglas said that he planned to take a full part in the court's work term. However, he is expected to return to a hospital from time to time for therapy sessions.

House approves new postal ties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to restore to the Congress fiscal responsibility for the deficit ridden U.S. Postal Service — which one Democrat called less efficient than the Pony Express.

"This is an attempt to make the Postal Service accountable to the people through the Congress," said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark. The House passed the measure 267-123.

Rep. Wayne L. Hayes, D-Ohio, called the Postal Service management "a bunch of fugitives from big business. Why, the Pony Express did a better job than they are doing."

Alexander said the Postal Service has been "the classic example of government mismanagement" for the past five years under a Postal Reorganization Act.

Congress removed federal postal operations from the political arena in 1970 and set up an independent board of governors to operate the system and a separate commission to recommend postal rates to pay for it.

Alexander's amendment would force the Postal Service to ask Congress each year for authorization and appropriations. Whatever revenues the service collected would be paid to the U.S. Treasury. Alexander's measure did not change responsibility for operations or rate making.

The amendment was attached to a bill seeking a $10.5 billion federal subsidy for four years of Postal Service operations. It was estimated the Postal Service would lose $850 million over the current government subsidy of $900 million during 1975. Debt for fiscal year 1976 is expected to be $10.5 billion.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known. But rescue workers said they believed the Malev Hungarian Airlines plane may have exploded before plunging 5,000 feet into the choppy sea shortly before 4 a.m.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why are people ashamed to admit that they watch television?

I have friends who say, "I NEVER watch television, but I just happened to catch 'All In The Family' last Monday evening, and..."

That kind of snobbery irks me to no end. What's with those phonies, anyway?

ENJOYS TV

DEAR ENJOYS: Most people would like to appear to be more intellectual than they are. I am watching TV as something less than an intellectual pursuit.

It's the same kind of insecurity that causes people to say they read the book when they only saw the movie.

TV buff tired of tube boobs

DEAR ABBY: With all the important problems you get, money will probably sound like nothing, but I sure need some!

I am married to a stubborn, hot-tempered man who has a terrible foot odor. His feet perspire, he won't change his shoes and socks and his feet when he comes home. He leaves his shoes on right up until it's time to go to bed, then he takes them off and leaves them in the bedroom. This smells up the whole bedroom like you wouldn't believe. It sure repels me from any romantic ideas I might have.

I have bought him foot deodorant and anti-fungicide sprays, which he used a few times reluctantly, but it didn't help much.

I can't sleep anywhere else because I have a bad back and have to sleep on an extra firm mattress that is in the bedroom we share. What do I do now?

ASPHYXIATED IN SAN CARLOS

DEAR AS: Move the extra firm mattress to another room and pleasant dreams.

DEAR ABBY: I am a clergymen, and as such, I perform many marriage ceremonies.

My pet peeve is the well-meaning shutterbug who insists on flashing his camera during the wedding service.

One such photographer actually kept crawling around on the altar, adjusting the bride's veil and the groom's coat. He even asked me to please "lean in" a little more toward the couple. And all this while I was performing the ceremony.

Please put something in your column to discourage this type of thing.

DISTRACTED PASTOR

DEAR DISTRACTED: Seems to me that a pastor performing a marriage is, or should be, in command. He should lay down conditions for photography, and if the client couple dislikes the conditions, let 'em hunt up another pastor.

We have commitments from Idaho Business and Professional Women (BPW), teachers, American Association of University Professors, American Federation of Teachers, and Altrusa clubs.

Organizations already committed to the ERA Task Force in Idaho include many who have considerable membership statewide, Ms. Jones said.

Actually," she said, "when you look at the organizations who are fighting against the ERA, you find there are only two or three - the John Birch Society and a church group.

We think they are very well organized and very vocal, but we know they do not speak for the majority of men and women in Idaho and we want the legislators to realize this.

The coalition will seek to inform all women of the effect of the ERA on their lives and will try to contact each legislator before January and certainly before next year's elections. No community in Idaho will be overlooked in our attempts to get more accurate information to women concerning ERA and to get the legislators realize that the ERA is an important part of combating discrimination for women everywhere," Mrs. Jones said.

today in brief

Anthrax confirmed

SALEM (UPI) — An outbreak of anthrax, a fatal animal disease, has been confirmed in a Malheur County beef herd, the State Agriculture Department reported Monday.

Dr. Glenn Rea, state veterinarian, said the outbreak is not considered serious at this time, but the Vale area herd has been quarantined and treatment of the remaining animals in the herd started.

Four animals died before the disease was confirmed by an Idaho state laboratory.

BSU enrollment up

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State University announced unofficial enrollment figures Monday of 11,241 students — an increase of 12 per cent over the 1974 enrollment of 10,002.

The official enrollment figures will be released later this week at a meeting of the State Board of Education.

Deland Mercy, registrar for BSU, said the unofficial fall time enrollment figure was 7,417 or an increase of nine per cent over the 6,806 full time enrollment figure last year.

IF teachers reaffirm support

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Monday night the Idaho Falls Federation of Teachers reaffirmed its support for the 370 striking teachers in State School District 91.

Alan Rose, executive director of local 1093, said the federation has received encouragement from the American Federation of Teachers, and financial support from AFT locals throughout Idaho.

Public meetings slated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four public meetings will be held in October to discuss a court order requiring the Corps of Engineers to expand its authority under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he joined with Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Sen. James Buckley, R-New York, in introducing a bill to prevent the court order from taking effect.

Immunization Action Month*

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's governor declared October "Immunization Action Month" Monday and urged all Idaho parents and doctors to assure that every child is properly immunized.

In his proclamation, Gov. C. D. Andrus said "an alarming decline in the immunity levels of pre-school children has been observed nationally and in Idaho..."

He said surveys indicate as many as 34 per cent of Idaho's preschool children may be inadequately immunized against polio.

HAW director attempts to collect 'comp time'

BOISE (UPI) — Director James A. Bax of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare leaves his job at the end of the working day Tuesday, but not before efforts were made to obtain nearly $10,000 in leave and compensatory time.

But the question of "comp time" was quickly resolved and Bax said he and Gov. Cecil D. Andrus had worked it out in a matter of "30 seconds."

Bax said there really wasn't any issue.

"I feel I get everything I had coming to me from the state," Bax said. "There was no issue. I was adequately paid and that's that."

Andrus said that Bax was not entitled to "comp time" because he was an exempt employee. He said that probably Bax's staff sent through the request for the compensatory time as had happened many other times with resigning exempted officials.

The governor said, however, exempt employees are not allowed comp time under state law. He said Bax was entitled to the 30 days leave time, which he approved, but that was all. The 30 days leave time approximated amounts to $4,000. If this was added to the 43 comp time which was requested for the resigning director it would have amounted to $9,928.

As director of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Bax was paid $35,364 a year — one of the top-paid jobs in state government. He resigned earlier this month, effective Oct. 1 to pursue other interests.

After handing in his resignation to Andrus, Bax said that he "could afford" to retire for six or seven years until he decided what he wanted to do. He said he was considering several aspects, such as an offer to be president of a university in the South, enter into private business or possibly run for Congress from one of Idaho's congressional districts.

Meanwhile, Andrus said he doubts an appointment to replace Bax will be made before next week. He said he will not be "stamped" into an appointment.

Joe Nagel, a special assistant to the governor, has been assigned to the department since Bax's resignation was announced and will be acting director until an appointment is announced.

The chief executive said he has a number of potentials under consideration but won't have the information needed to make a decision for another week.

Dropout increase expected

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's public school chief feels school dropouts may increase because of the decision by the State Department of Employment to cut back funding of the Neighborhood Youth Corps program.

Idaho Supt. of Public Instruction Roy Truby said Monday he has told the department he felt "they're actually encouraging students to leave school."

The program provides part time jobs for teenagers in school who meet certain poverty guidelines.

Truby said, "in today's affluent society, the youngster who doesn't have money in his pocket can be pretty frustrated." He said this frustration could cause youths to drop out of school.

Glenn Nichols, director of the Idaho Department of Employment, couldn't agree with Truby that curtailment of the program would cause more dropouts.

MERIDIAN, Idaho (UPI) — Officials of the Meridian School District are hopeful voters next Tuesday will approve a $4.5 million bond issue to ease crowding conditions in the district's schools.

Meridian School Supt. August M. Helm said the district's enrollment increase this year is more than the total enrollment in 63 of the state's 115 districts.

MERIDIAN, Idaho (UPI) — Officials of the Meridian School District are hopeful voters next Tuesday will approve a $4.5 million bond issue to ease crowding conditions in the district's schools.

Meridian School Supt. August M. Helm said the district's enrollment increase this year is more than the total enrollment in 63 of the state's 115 districts.

He said "current Meridian enrollment is up 82 students — a 12.8 per cent increase. He said that "doesn't include 467 kindergarten kids who started this fall."

Your Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am 60 and have angina pectoris. I'm on a reduction diet and have lost 15 pounds in two months. I am an extremely active woman and have found it difficult to curtail my activities.

I would like to know if angina can be cured. I am taking my medication three times a day, including the nitroglycerin, from which I get an unpleasant reaction. Please send me your booklet, "How To Handle Angina Pectoris," for which I'm sending 25 cents to you (in care of this newspaper) and enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. — D. G.

Perhaps you don't fully understand what angina is all about. The booklet you requested on the subject will help you. Briefly, angina involves the heart muscle and the blood vessels supplying it. The heart muscle contracts to pump blood out into the general circulation.

You can't cure a symptom

Diets for compatibility

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Come Zoo's lady anteater and her beau from the Topeka Zoo are on special diets to make them more compatible for the upcoming union in about a week.

Come's unnamed 8-year-old female spiny anteater was flown from St. Paul to Topeka Sept. 15 to begin preparation for meeting Corzano, her mate picked through the International Species Inventory System developed by Dr. U. S. Seal, a University of Minnesota bio-chemist.

Bill Gage, head keeper at the Topeka zoo, said both anteaters are being fed high protein dog meal with eggs and milk.

The female had been eating chow, mash and orange juice while the male was eating meat, milk and eggs, but they must have similar diets to be compatible.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am in my early 60s, and my husband still insists on having intercourse occasionally. But it seems to get more painful for me. Is there something wrong with me, or is it just my age? I feel that I am over with sex. — Mrs. O. E.

This is not unusual in women who have gone through the menopause. The decrease in hormone production tends to shrink the internal reproductive organs and concurrently to make the membranes dry. This can be a factor in the pain you feel. The condition can be treated with the hormone estrogen orally or as a vaginal cream.

If you feel mentally that you are "over with sex" then you probably are. But physically, there need be no lessening of perfectly normal sexual pleasures just because of your age or because of menopause.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

Is there any immunity shot to protect one from poison ivy and poison oak? Three years ago I had my first eas of it, then I got another one last November. — C.C.

Extracts of the oil present in the leaves of ivy and oak are available. It is taken by mouth beginning well before the season begins. This method of prevention is quite controversial. Severe reactions have been reported from minute doses.

It is recommended only for those whose sensitivity or occupation makes it difficult not to contract it. The best prevention is to avoid the plants, and if exposed to wash the exposed areas well.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 3999, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Virginia woman admits dark secret 'Three Faces of Eve'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The secret described in a book and shown in a movie brought others fame and fortune, but for 23 years it brought Mrs. Christopher Sizemore only misery.

In a Washington Post interview, the 48-year-old Fairfax City, Va., housewife revealed for the first time that she was the subject of the film, "The Three Faces of Eve."

Mrs. Sizemore suffers from multiple personality, a rare form of mental illness which she even concealed from her 16-year-old son until three years ago.

Mrs. Sizemore, who was interviewed with her psychiatrist's blessing, said her personality is now back in control, but at various times in her life she has manifested 21 different personalities.

"I ask my friends if they ever saw the movie 'The Three Faces of Eve,'" she said. "If they have, I say, 'Well, I've Eve.'"

Actress Joanne Woodward won an Academy Award portraying "Eve" in the movie, based on a book by Mrs. Sizemore's first psychiatrist.

Her current psychiatrist, Dr. Tony Tsitos, said Mrs. Sizemore felt strong enough to reveal her identity and "it made a great deal of difference to her to get rid of that deceit. You know, it made her feel very guilty because of what it did to her family."

"You don't know how wonderful it is to go to bed at night and know that it will be you that wakes up the next day," Mrs. Sizemore said. "I have so much to be thankful for."

The first born of an Edgewood, S.C., county employee's three daughters, Mrs. Sizemore said she could remember her first personality change.

"I was two years old. My mother had hurt her arm badly. It was really bleeding. I thought she was going to die. She said 'Go get Daddy,' but I ran over to the bed and stuck my head under a pillow. Then it was as if I were rocketed into space and I could watch this little girl go and get any father. It wasn't me. I was watching."

Mrs. Sizemore thinks she developed the separate personalities as a safety mechanism.

"I was exposed to death very early," she said. "I remember seeing a man who had drowned in a ditch, and another man who was cut in half by a saw at a lumber mill. And then when I saw my mother's first cut, I thought she was going to die and I wouldn't handle it."

Dr. Tsitos, who has treated Mrs. Sizemore for several years, said some of Mrs. Sizemore's personalities "hated my guts."

"It was just like a little Peyton Place," Tsitos said. "These personalities were playing games with each other. For Mrs. Sizemore, it was an ongoing soap opera, just like watching her own soap opera, only it was for real."

Doctors say research into the illness so far has indicated that multiple personality disorders gradually diminish as a person grows older.

But Mrs. Sizemore and Tsitos also believe her recovery was made possible when she realized a year ago her personalities were really her, not separate people.

"I've come a long way since the 'Three Faces of Eve,'" Mrs. Sizemore said. "I didn't see the movie until this summer. And it was good. Joanne Woodward did an excellent job of acting. But, after all I've lived through, the movie just seemed so unimportant."

Idaho Power Company

A CITIZEN WHEREVER IT SERVES

Idaho Power Company is owned by more than 22,000 shareowners. They are located in all 50 states, as well as in 24 foreign countries. Many more are located within Idaho than in any other state, and almost half of the total number live in the western states. More than 90 percent are individuals and families. This includes Idaho Power employees.

Other owners are organizations or institutions. Among these, according to December, 1974, records, are 40 churches or religious groups; 36 hospitals, orphanages and charitable organizations; 32 lodges and fraternal organizations; 20 colleges and universities, more than 100 insurance companies and 120 employee pension funds.

So, even though you may not directly hold shares in the Company, your purchase of insurance, membership in a pension fund or other affiliation could make you an Idaho Power Company owner.

Because of the necessity of borrowing millions of dollars to build the facilities which bring your electricity, ownership of the Company is widely scattered. However, all of the officers and employees and all but one director live within the area we serve.

Health group studies funding

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Mental Health Association of Idaho supports continued funding of Idaho State Hospital South, but favors study of overall funding of mental health services.

The resolution was passed at the conclusion of the group's annual meeting over the weekend at Elkhorn in Sun Valley. The membership also urged the state legislature to provide adequate funding for the community mental health centers throughout the state as the federal support decreases.

A group of resolutions presented by Dr. John Stoner, Caldwell, chairman of the professional advisory committee of the state mental health group, were referred to a study committee headed by Sharon Hubler, Caldwell, retiring state president.

They involve study into all sources of funding for mental health centers.

During a panel Saturday on "Treatment Approaches for the Mentally Ill," Dr. Whit Jones, acting director of Region 3 in Canyon county, urged that money go directly to the regional centers so we can have freedom to choose where to obtain the best care for our clients," he gave an example of sending a patient to Blackfoot where it took 30 days for an evaluation which would take two days by a private practitioner because it was cheaper at the hospital.

He said as it now functions, the first question the community center personnel have to ask is "Can you pay?" If a person is either rich or poor, there is no problem, but for all those in between, the biggest issue is whether or not they have Blue Cross.

Idaho is one of only two states in the US having total coverage of mental health community centers and speakers throughout the day agreed the issue is not the centers vs. the state hospital, but that both are needed for comprehensive service.

The real issue in Idaho, Dr. Stoner said, is "Are we making best use of limited resources to provide the best care?"

Richard Bolton, assistant administrator at the Blackfoot hospital, sees that institution as a "vital link in a circular chain" which begins with the community centers. He said crisis intervention and short term care, especially for first time illness is best handled at the regional centers, but long term care for the chronically ill, and specialty service for youth, geriatrics and forensic cases are more efficiently provided at a hospital within a more structured framework.

He said the patient load has been reduced from about 750 to between 180 and 200, despite a 69 per cent increase in admissions in the past 15 years. He said 59 per cent of the patients are there through court orders with 41 per cent voluntary admissions.

Rupert begins traffic study

RUPERT — The first phase of a traffic safety study for Rupert began last week.

Robert Jacobs, CH-2-M Hill Co. in Boise, told Rupert Chamber of Commerce members Thursday that city officials requested the study because of increasing accident rates in the city.

He cited a total of 614 accidents in four years, costing motorists $300,000.

The study was approved by the city council in July after a federal grant was okayed for 77 per cent of the estimated $13,000 cost of the study. Rupert is the first city in the state to receive such grant approval.

Jacobs is part of a four-man team sent to start the project, with a report due for public presentation within a month.

The four engineers met early in the week with Mayor Wendell Johnson, Councilman Dwinnelle Allred and the city's traffic safety commission, headed by Steve Schow. Vice-Chairman is Larry Halstead.

The two were elected to the commission offices last week.

Irrigation canal, railroad track and city square design have created longtime special problems for Rupert traffic.

The study is expected to take three months and will be made in three phases. The first phase to be completed by the end of this week will test all areas of the city.

Jacobs said there will be a field inventory of traffic signs and signals, according to type, location and condition, followed by a determination of the conformity to accepted standards.

He said the engineers will collect traffic counts at peak hours at critical intersections and categorize traffic accident data.

A major study of street and intersection approaches, with pavement widths and conditions, parking and signs or signals will be made. Chet Mills of the Rupert Streets Department is making checks of the parking spaces in downtown Rupert to survey use and length of time cars park there.

The checks are being made around the square, on E Street to Seventh, on Seventh between E and G streets; F Street from Fourth to Eighth, on Sixth between D and G and along Fremont Street.

Police are taking spot radar readings to determine speeds of arterial and other streets.

The second phase of the project will be an analysis of the data to determine the "traffic safety situation" and development of a plan for improvement, both short term and for major changes.

The third phase is training the traffic safety committee in continued updating of traffic and safety information.

Bike trail outlook 'good'

By BART COESNELL
Times-News writer

HAILOVY — Bike trails look good for a bike trail between Hailey and Ketchum along the Union Pacific railroad but rigid state highway restrictions may block a federal grant for the trail.

A regional manager for Union Pacific is encouraging Blaine County assistant planner Bob Kettle to supply details and liability information on the proposed eight-foot wide bike trail.

Kettle said he had received written a letter to Union Pacific officials asking if the company would be interested in extending the right-of-way into Cold Springs, a small development two miles south of Ketchum.

The trail from Cold Springs could extend along the highway on the east side into Ketchum, or follow the tracks that switch to the west of Cold Springs from the main route to Hailey to East Fork and he has written a letter to Union Pacific officials asking if the company would be interested in extending the right-of-way into Cold Springs, a small development two miles south of Ketchum.

The trail will cost about $12,000 per mile, Kettle said.

Under Department of Transportation rules, Kettle said grants for bike trails must be applied to new or rebuilt highways. In addition, the trail must be established as the major routes to be used by cyclists.

The second point is not a real problem, Kettle said, because there is no other bike route except U.S. Highway 93 now being used.

However, the fact no money is available for bike trails along old highways which are not going to be rebuilt is questionable, he said. State transportation officials are supposedly looking into that regulation to see if money can be applied to Kettle's proposed trail.

Kettle said the state highway division had given a bike trail for Ketchum to North Fork top priority during the controversy over a four-lane highway through the Valley.

With the scrapping of plans for the four-lane highway went the bike trail plans as well. Transportation officials have told Kettle to make a written request that a new route from Hailey to Ketchum be considered for funding.

Kettle said the state highway officials have told him there is money available for bike trails in Idaho but the rules must be followed.

The land along the tracks is flat, well-drained and gravelled, which would require little engineering.

Flying Ladder' not speedy

CARBONDALE, III. (UPI) — Airplane builder Mike Murphy admits that it's a bit embarrassing and scary when geese honk and then pass him by in his "flying ladder."

Murphy, 20, an aviation technology student at Southern Illinois University, constructed his homemade version of a 1912 Bellanca for $1,500 about three years ago.

Now he's planning on building something with a little more speed, equipped perhaps with a retractable landing gear.

Mike has logged 100 hours in the plane and makes 30-mile flights to his home in the Chicago suburb of Oak Lawn. But with a top speed of 48 miles an hour for the plane, geese can catch and pass Murphy in its cockpit.

Fatality said 'crib death'

TWIN FALLS — Tara Dawn Richardson, three-week-old infant, was pronounced dead on arrival at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital this morning.

Hospital officials said attending physicians termed the fatality a "crib death." Coronor Cloyce Edwards has tentatively scheduled an inquest. The child was the daughter of Terry Richardson, Twin Falls.

No competition seen at Wendell

WENDELL — Unless interest increases in the next six days, there will be no competition in the Wendell City election Nov. 4.

The terms of Harold Simerly and Denton Adams are expiring and Simerly has said he will not run for re-election. Adams has taken out one petition and another has been filed for Ellis Thompson, manager of the Hub City Building Center in Wendell.

Mrs. Gwen Collett, city clerk, said these are the only two petitions being circulated that she knows about. Deadline for filing declarations of candidacy is 5 p.m. Oct. 7.

Heart attack claims Burley woman

RUPERT — A Blinco Farms bookkeeper died of a heart attack Monday afternoon while driving her car from the farm southwest of here.

Anna Dickson, 58, Burley, died about 4:30 p.m. Monday. Jay Smith, Rupert, told a Minidoka County deputy sheriff that he saw the car veer off the road and stop. He said he got out to help the woman and saw she was gasping for air.

Smith went to Blinco Farms to call for assistance. He said he returned with John Hall, Paul, and found the woman dead.

Death ruled suicide

BOISE — The death of a former Rupert City official, William G. Strasser, 60, has been ruled as a suicide by Ada County officials.

Strasser was found dead in the basement of his Boise home about two weeks ago. He suffered five shotgun wounds, four of them superficial, officers said. His wife, Frances Strasser, was wounded.

Ada County Prosecutor David Leroy said investigation indicates Strasser shot himself. County Coroner Steven Jablonski said he will tentatively rule suicide in the death. No inquest is planned.

Theft reported in Declo

DECLO — The Gillette Market was broken into Sunday night and about $1,300 worth of goods stolen.

A Cassia County deputy sheriff said the culprits smashed a plate glass window with a piece of asphalt. He said they left through the front door, possibly driving away in a White Chevrolet pickup truck.

They took two car stereos, a couple of down-filled jackets, a clock radio, jewelry and watches, knives, $150 in a money bag and $30 from the till.

The deputy said they also threw goods around in the store and emptied a fire extinguisher in one corner of the store.

Blaine meet set tonight

HAILEY — The Upper Wood River Water Users Association will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Blaine County Courthouse.

Shareholders and association members have scheduled an informational meeting on the Silver Creek Aquifer Study.

Customers could be 'stuck'

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company President James A. Bruce says the firm's customers should pay as part of a rate hike the $115 million cost overrun in the construction of the Jim Bridger generating plant in Wyoming.

Testifying before the Idaho Public Utilities Commission Monday on behalf of a 26 per cent increase sought by Idaho Power, Bruce said the 47 per cent cost increase over 1971 estimates was acceptable in light of unexpected economic factors.

The company is seeking the increase—partly due to construction of the coal-fired Jim Bridger plant in Rock Springs, Wyo. It was estimated in 1971 that cost of the facility would be $30 million, but the cost went up to $48.5 million.

Vehicle damaged

TWIN FALLS — Jerry L. Doty, College of Southern Idaho student, told city police someone damaged his 1971 vehicle while it was parked on the dormitory parking lot Monday night.

Damage was estimated at $1000. He told officers wires and hoses were cut after someone forced open the hood of the vehicle. A window was also broken and the upholstery was cut.

Beer stolen in TF

TWIN FALLS — Marvin Climer told police Monday a Twin Falls Beverage Co. truck he operates was burglarized Aug. 19 while parked behind the Klover Klub.

He said two kegs of beer and one case of canned beer were taken. Loss was estimated at $71.15.

In other police news, vandals shot out six windows in vehicles belonging to Ford Transfer and Storage Co. Monday, police reports indicate. Damage was estimated at $500.

Don King, Kimberly, reported his Honda motorcycle, valued at $400, was taken from a parking space near the Twin Falls Fire Station. The theft occurred between Monday evening and 5:30 a.m. Tuesday.

TF homecoming week under way

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls High School Homecoming Week is here again.

This year homecoming will honor the alumni classes of '58 and '60. Graduates from these years are invited to participate in the activities.

Homecoming activities begin Thursday with a powerful football game between the senior and junior girls at Bruin Stadium. The game will begin at 7 p.m. and will be followed with a bonfire in the Bruin Baseball Field.

A pep rally for the homecoming football game will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the Twin Falls High School gym.

The homecoming parade — complete with antelope float — will move down Main Street through the Downtown Mall on Friday at 2:30 p.m. The theme of the float will be the bicentennial and the Spirit of '76.

The homecoming football game will begin at 8 p.m. on Friday in Bruin Stadium.

The homecoming dance will be held in the Twin Falls High School gym at 8 p.m. for the student body members and alumni.

Agency tries to halt bias suit

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The South-Central Community Action Agency has rescinded the hiring of its executive director in an attempt to avoid sex discrimination charges.

Earlier this month the SCCAA board of directors hired a man, Austin Martin, a former community development specialist in Boise and a former Catholic priest as executive director.

In the process the SCCAA board passed over three women candidates for the job, two of them current SCCAA employees.

Martin was due to begin his duties this week. However, the SCCAA board rescinded the hiring Friday, and reopened the application process in order to clarify hiring procedures and avoid a possible sex discrimination suit.

According to board chairman Ken Thacker, the rescission was made primarily to protect the agency and allow it to follow more uniform hiring procedures should a sex discrimination charge be brought.

Thacker said that Martin was "definitely" still a candidate for the job, and "probably a very good candidate."

Although he said he did not know who might have started the rambunctious about sex discrimination, Thacker said that three women — acting SCCAA director Kay Viste, SCCAA employee Frieda Johnston, and social worker Marle Scott — had applied for the job.

Scott and Marle were the finalists for the position, said, adding that Martin had been chosen largely because he had more executive experience and more experience in public relations, which the board had considered a weak point with previous SCCAA directors.

Thacker said, however, that the hiring of Martin was made under a tight time line and that the board collected telephone references rather than written references on Martin from some people.

A further problem arose, he said, because the SCCAA's affirmative action plan calls for the hiring of a woman or a minority person "all else equal."

He said the board hopes to have a director hired "no later than Nov. 15, and probably in a shorter period of time."

Thacker said Martin has been instructed not to assume his duties. Monday Thacker said the other things being equal, "the SCCAA is also bound by its regulations to give preference to current SCCAA employees, he added."

Thacker also noted, Martin is a disabled veteran (having been wounded while an army chaplain) and is also eligible for preference points.

"A lot of our reasons for making the choice that we did were not documented," Thacker admitted. "One of the main reasons Austin Martin was selected was his genuine dedication to low-income people."

Thacker said the board had not actually changed their minds about the hiring of Martin. "We have to go back and document the candidates to protect us in the event that a discrimination charge might come about," he said.

He said the board hopes to have a director hired "no later than Nov. 15, and probably in a shorter period of time."

Thacker said Martin has been instructed not to assume his duties. Monday Thacker said the board might have to put Martin on salary, "because we do have an obligation during this time."

Today, however, Thacker said that on the advice of an attorney Martin would probably not be given a salary but might be given some remuneration to tide him over while unemployed if he had resigned from El Adna Inc., Boise, to accept the SCCAA post.

SCCAA interim director Kay Viste, asked today if she had contemplated a sex discrimination suit against the agency, said she did not think the question "arose at this point."

"My concern," she added, "was that a board that sets down a certain set of rules follows those rules."

Blaine plan strikes snag

HAILEY — If Monday night's planning and zoning meeting is an indication, the Blaine County comprehensive plan is still a long way from adoption.

The commission has worked nearly three years attempting to get a workable plan approved by the county commissioners but when the two political bodies sat down Monday to discuss points of contention in the plan another stumbling block surfaced.

The point of contention is whether to implement a planned unit development (P.U.D.) concept or an on-site density transfer concept.

Both concepts mean practically the same thing but on-site density transfer has never been tried in the state and the county's attorney and a state planning lawyer are opposed to using a plan that has never been tested.

Both plans involve clustering houses in an area suitable only for development. Both plans strive for preservation of open space and prime agricultural land and community facilities.

Blaine County's most vocal county commissioner, Dr. Ivan Gustafson, insisted RUDs are the "only way" to go to save the county's valuable land. The planning and zoning commission still favors the on-site density transfer plan and are against P.U.D.'s in agricultural land.

Under the P.U.D. a developer is given an incentive to move his density rights from prime agricultural land onto land suited only for development.

However, homeowner's associations must be formed under P.U.D.'s. The planning commission is frightened that people will not want to, or be able to, take care of the adjacent agricultural land which would be under the control of the homeowner's association.

Under an on-site density transfer plan the developer will be able again to take the density on his prime agricultural land and move that density to an area suitable only for development.

The on-site density transfer plan does not include incentives to encourage construction of on-site units that a P.U.D. would. The on-site transfer does allow the farmer who sold the land to farm that land from which the density was moved. It does not require a homeowner's association to be formed.

Both plans sound complicated but mean essentially the same thing. Until a compromise is devised or the county commissioners rule on the question the county plan will not be approved.

Forest advisory officials inspect new SNRA building

SNRA headquarters site included in annual tour

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A first-hand inspection of the controversial Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters building here was a main feature of the annual field trip of the Sawtooth National Forest Multiple Use Advisory Committee last week.

Gray Reynolds, superintendent of the SNRA, told the group the headquarters building will be in use by next summer, complete with visitor facilities and offices.

Robert Hoag, Sawtooth recreation staff officer, said at least one-third of the total building will be visitor facilities including a number of special displays and slides of films of various areas of the SNRA.

These displays are now being prepared in anticipation of the official opening of the center.

An unusual alpine design of the building was adopted to blend the structure with the high peaks surrounding it. Reynolds told advisory board members during their Saturday visit, the object of area individuals to the site of the structure has subsided.

"Everyone who has seen the building in the construction stages seems well pleased with it," he said.

He said construction will run about $41 per square foot, with a $50-per-square-foot cost covering furnishings and landscaping. A visitor parking lot to accommodate about 25 vehicles will be paved and will be landscaped. A reflection pool and landscaping around the building will follow the natural vegetation and terrain of the area.

The advisory committee toured the South Hills area, Friday, where committee members inspected the Rocky Mountain pine beetle infestations, snowmobile facilities and several other improvement programs including fire prevention measures in summer home areas.

On Saturday the group visited Sun Valley, touring the Baldy Mountain ski lift facilities, inspecting the snow-making equipment and the Baldy Mountain electronic installations and fire look-out station.

Forest Supervisor F.A. Fournier conducted the tour assisted by Robert Hoag, recreation staff officer; Tom Pestotnik, engineer; Jack Hougard, forest planner; Fred Baugh, range management specialist, and rangers Lewis Munson, Larry Weeks and Tom Farr.

Jack is scheduled to meet today with representatives of the Idaho Vocational Rehabilitation Service and the Social Security Administration.

However, Lileks holds little hope for resuming aid to Jack. "I'll just have to tell him—that there's no chance," Lileks said Monday.

Jack is confused by the cut-offs. "I'll hurt my knee right now and said that it hurt me so bad that I couldn't work and quit my job, then Social Security and Health and Welfare would help me and I could live like a bum the rest of my life," he said.

Jack's father, Arthur J. Nipper of Eden, said his son's illness costs between $15,000 and $25,000 a year. "You don't get by much less than $15,000 and it can run to $35,000 real fast," he said.

The elder Nipper, who has suffered several heart attacks in recent years, said Jack wanted to assume the responsibility for his medical costs when he turned 18.

"Until he was about 18, his total bill was about $400,000 and I've paid about $150,000," the father said. A private insurance company paid most of the remainder of the bill.

"We really never did ask for aid . . . I think everybody should try to take care of their own responsibilities, but there are times when they can't do that," he added.

Illnesses such as Jack's "can make you poor for a lifetime," the father said. "You do away with a lot of things, but he's worth it. We wouldn't trade him for all the new houses and new cars in the world."

Jack said when he turned 18, I decided to start paying myself because they (parents) really aren't financially able to take care of it."

Limping on his left leg, which has been crippled by repeated sprains and internal bleeding, Jack is afraid that he is "going to be out in the cold." "I don't really worry about getting out," he said. "Joints can cripple you, but a cut can just kill."

Jack suffered a fractured vertebrae in front of national television, falling from his horse but he beat all but three of the many letters he sent to the postal service.

Boren tried to give the postmaster general the "Order of the Bird" award a metal "post-bellied bird—but the postmaster wouldn't accept, he said.

The bird awards go to deserving bureaucrats whose bureaucratic excesses would go unheralded and unnoticed.

Boren has worked as an administrative aide to a U.S. senator, was deputy director of the Professional Bureaucrats, which is Jimmy Carter's "office of the alphabet" with audience.

To establish a lasting world peace he says problems as the "alphabet" with his audience.

To establish a lasting world peace he says he would some astonishing solutions to world problems as the "alphabet" with his audience.

To establish a lasting world peace he says he would make the U.S. Department of Defense and the U.S. Postal Service change places. The defense department has a way of getting millions to places they want in a hurry. The postal service has trouble getting anything to a place.

If the two were to change the world would be a better place, he says.

"Being a specialist from Washington I obviously have all the answers," he says.

If he has the answer to unemployment, First-he would create local committees in every state to study unemployment.

Then he would initiate review committees to study the local committees. Finally he would create survey committees to study the review committees that are studying the local committees.

In this way unemployment would be halted because everybody would be put to work studying unemployment.

Bureaucrat stresses 'dynamic inactivity'

By BART QUESNELL

SUN VALLEY — Bureaucrats—a message from your leader. "When in charge, ponder when in trouble, delegate; when in doubt, memorize."

"Remember, we bureaucrats are not against cutting red tape . . . as long as it is cut lengthwise. If you're going to be a phony, be sincere about it."

The president of the National Association of Professional Bureaucrats, Dr. James B. Boren, offered these and other hints during his keynote address Monday at the Idaho Hospital Association's 42nd convention.

Boren, a portly man in his 40s dressed in the traditional blue business suit of any true-blooded politician, travels the country in his relentless pursuit to the higher goals of "dynamic inactivity."

"Progress is our greatest mistake," he says convincingly. "Red tape is what binds the world together. Nothing should be done the first time around."

As Boren is introduced he struts to the microphone, stares at the audience and in true filibuster style, distinct and to the point, says,

"It's a great pleasure for me to be here with you for two hours and 45 minutes of multilobular dialogue, in the spirit of conceptual celibacy."

The nearly 700 convention delegates, unaware of Boren's satire, break into loud laughter and applause as though they've heard similar non-statements in election years.

Boren continues after the applause and laughter dies but somewhere in the middle of the sentence he begins mumbling and the words fade away.

"And I have been directed by a 9 to 7 vote of our executive committee to extend to you my most felicitous . . . but the words become faint," he says.

"And I have been directed by a 9 to 7 vote of our executive committee to extend to you my most felicitous . . . but the words become faint," he says.

equipment were burglarized recently, he said, but nothing stolen. He is also receiving death threats periodically, he says.

The action which brought him to nationwide attention was his pony express ride in 1972 from Philadelphia to Washington, D.C. Boren attempted to beat the U.S. Postal Service on horseback, carrying letters mailed the same day.

He suffered a fractured vertebrae in front of national television, falling from his horse but he beat all but three of the many letters he sent to the postal service.

Campaigns set in Minidoka

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News Writer

RUPERT — Two Minidoka County mayors with long service at the head of municipal government are planning another campaign this fall.

So is one Cassia County mayor.

Two other Min-Cassia area mayors, both with many years of civic service are planning to bow out.

The two seats of county government retain their mayors. The mayor of Oakley is out of town and has made no announcement concerning this year's election.

Vernard Comstock, Harold Hurst and Wallace Briggs plan to seek new terms as mayors, although none has taken out a petition.

Comstock has been at the helm of the Accelaqua government ever since it was incorporated over 25 years ago, first as village chairman and later as mayor.

"I suppose I will," Comstock said, when asked if he would run for another term as mayor.

Hurst was appointed to the village board of Heyburn in 1957 and served most of the time as chairman until it was named a city and he was elected mayor in 1967.

"I will imagine I will run," Hurst said Sunday. "I'd like to finish what I started. I'd like to see an ordinary city development."

Heyburn is experiencing enormous growth. Numerous houses have been constructed in recent months and several industries are interested in locating there.

Heyburn filed with the federal government earlier this year for a special census to gain more rebate money and federal revenue sharing funds for its larger population.

Hurst is concerned about zoning, although he said the city council has been "far sighted" and is doing "a real job" on that problem. He said the city also has put a lot of effort toward a water system and he would like to see a secondary sewer treatment plant.

Briggs said he probably will run for another term. He has been mayor of Malta since it became a city.

"We do have a project going I'd like to see through," he said referring to a city platting project preparatory to oiling of Malta's streets.

The mayors of Minidoka and Declo are contemplating retirement from municipal government. "I don't think I will run," said Dorothy Courtwright, who has been mayor of Minidoka for 11 years. She did say she might if no other candidate appeared, but she would prefer to retire from the office.

Mayor George Shrenk is firm in his decision not to run again.

On the Declo council since 1958, Shrenk has served eight years as mayor.

Robert Larsen at Paul and Douglas Mahoney at Albion are undecided whether or not to run. Both are completing their first terms.

"I'm still debating," said Larsen, who was elected in 1971. "I've enjoyed it and I have no graps."

Larsen said he was drawn toward running again because he would like to investigate housing for senior citizens and expansion of recreation and parks facilities for Paul.

Mayo Mahoney was elected to the Albion council in 1973, then appointed mayor to replace O'Dene Redman.

"I just haven't decided yet for sure," Mahoney said of the forthcoming election.

Mayor Thomas Miller of Malta was appointed to his position. He will be out of town until Wednesday night and has made no announcement of his election intentions.

There had been no filings for mayor in Cassia or Minidoka as of Monday morning.

50 entries set for race

JACKPOT — They're out and running, the anticipated 50 entries in the third annual Diamondfield Jack 57-mile endurance race, but only in practice.

Horses must be in condition for the Saturday run between Crockett meadows near Hansen and the forefront of Cactus Pete's casino in Jackpot to pass pre-veterinary examinations.

Horses, all breeds are acceptable although the Magic Valley Appaloosa Horse Club will be host, will be examined at the half way mark in Showboat basin, and at the finish.

Elders, expected to include last year's winner, Mrs. Hanne Hollander, Powell Butte, Ore., and Norman Barstad, Los Angeles, Calif., 1973 winner, will assemble the evening of Oct. 3 at the meadows.

Prize money and awards will total $1500.

2 Burley aides

won't seek posts

BURLEY — Two Burley councilmen have announced they will not run this year, while another has taken out a petition for election.

Leonard King, appointed to the council in 1974 on the death of Jerry Wyant, is one of four potential candidates who had received petitions by the weekend for four council seats open Nov. 4 in Burley.

The others are Steve Westfall, John Struchen and Don Chessman. King took out a petition Friday.

"We're working on a lot of things," said King. "I'd like to see some of them done."

Councilmen L. V. Morgan and John Craft have announced they will not run for re-election. Councilman Floyd Taylor is understood.

Craft was elected in 1967. He listed business commitment as a reason for not running again, adding "eight years is long enough anyway."

Craft explained, "You get to where you are not as objective and you are just not as effective."

"This is a wonderful opportunity for new blood," remarked Morgan, elected the same year as Craft.

"I served my time," he said of his decision. "I'm not in favor of holding political office forever."

Morgan is president of the city council. He took out a petition last week but delivered it to Westfall, his grandchild.

Taylor said Sunday he is not decided whether to run or not. He is completing his first term.

Aaron top candidate as Brewers' manager

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Henry Aaron, the all-time home run king, is the No. 1 candidate to replace Del Crandall, who was fired Sunday as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Aaron may not be No. 1 on the list of Brewers president Bud Selig or General Manager Jim Baumer.

But his name is the one that most people are talking about, and there are many good reasons for it.

For his part, Aaron has minimized any talk about him taking over the club — either as a player-manager or just as a manager.

He has said he wouldn't mind managing. He considers it a challenge. He says he has ideas about how to run a ball club.

But he won't comment specifically on the Brewers job, and neither will Selig or Baumer.

Aaron has one more year remaining on his playing contract with the Brewers. But it's obvious he's not the player he once was.

He finished the year with a .231 average, 12 home runs and 60 runs batted in.

When he came to the Brewers he was expected to lead a young club into the thick of a pennant fight.

Aaron has made no secret of the fact that he's disappointed with his performance this year, and there has been talk of his retiring from baseball.

He's got a big money contract with Magnavox, but that company would probably like to keep Aaron's name in the baseball spotlight so he can be of more promotional value to them.

It also has been learned that Aaron is negotiating a multi-million dollar deal for a distributorship with the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co.

But some people who know Aaron well say they think he still enjoys baseball and would like to hang around, maybe as a manager.

And it's also pretty plain that the Brewers will offer the job to Aaron.

There has been a strong penchant on Selig's part to staff the Brewers with former members of the Milwaukee Braves.

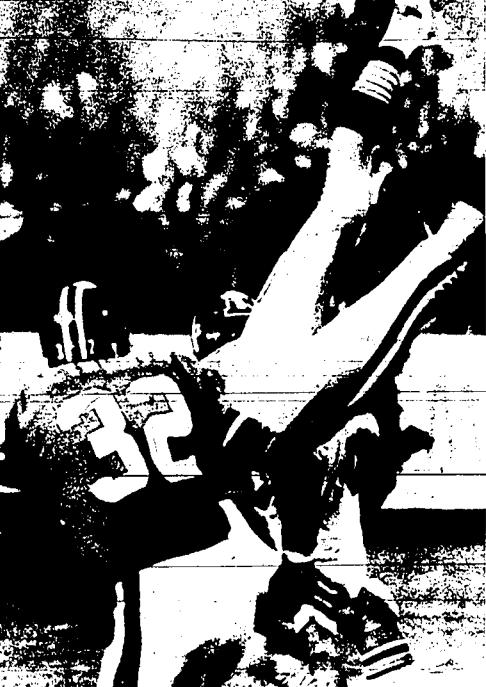

Other names being mentioned for the job include former Braves Del Rice, Roy McMillan and Eddie Matthews.

But Aaron's name obviously has a lot of magic to it and he contributed to a huge rise in the Brewers' attendance this year.

Yaz settles with manager

BOSTON (UPI) — Carl Yastrzemski, miffed because he was benched Saturday, had a heart-to-heart talk with manager Darrell Johnson before flying to his new home in Florida for a few days rest.

It had been announced earlier that Yastrzemski, who has been playing with an injured left shoulder, would take time off after Boston clinched its division title.

But it was evident that Yaz was upset by being benched. He met with Johnson for 45 minutes after the game.

"I gave him time off until Friday. The doctor and he both thought he needed this time," Johnson said. Yastrzemski flew home Sunday.

But friends of Yastrzemski said they expected he'd attend workouts Wednesday.

Snyder gives Ali 9-5 odds

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder said Monday heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali is a 9-5 favorite to beat Joe Frazier in their title fight in Manila Wednesday.

The oddsmaker also said it is even money that the fight will go the entire 15 rounds.

Phillies Ozark signs contract

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Phillies Manager Danny Ozark, object of jeers and criticism when the team began falling behind in the National League pennant race, will be back as manager next year, a club spokesman said Monday.

The spokesman said Ozark has a year remaining on his contract and "there never was any doubt" he would remain. The spokesman said no announcement was planned.

Rudy Carpenter, Phillies president, said on a post-game radio show after Sunday's finale with the New York Mets, that "Danny will be back in 1976."

Carpenter said: "Despite all of the criticism and, in some cases, abuse this man has taken, overall you have to give him a plus. I know it might disappoint some people," but he and Paul Owens, director of player personnel, felt that Ozark has "made some significant contributions."

The Phillies finished second in National League East, 6½ games back of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Fishing hearing set Oct. 1

All sportsmen interested in fishing or commenting on management policies are welcome to attend. The final regulations will be set on October 21 by the Fish and Game Commission.

Reds coach says his team the best he's ever seen

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "I want everybody in the country to see this ball club," beamed Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson when team opens the National League playoffs against the Pittsburgh Pirates here Saturday.

"This is the best team I've ever seen," boasts Sparky. "It's the best I've ever seen a team perform for an entire season and we keep up the performance in the playoffs, we'll win it."

The Reds won a club record 108 games this season.

"I don't think I'll ever see it again in my lifetime," admits the 41-year-old, white-haired manager. "Things worked out better this season than I ever dared dream."

Sparky's just-season dream, of course, is to win the World Series.

Although Sparky has led the team to division championships four of the six years he's been here, he has not been able to take the World Series.

The fans want a world championship," he says. "They're clamoring for it. All I can say now is that this is the best team we've had and I'm very enthused about it."

Does Sparky worry about his fate if he blows another World Series?

"His way of answering that question is to reach for the telephone on his desk and imply it would be easy for him to get another managing job."

"I don't look at it as the end of the world," he says. "We're prepared for the playoffs, never go to the park dreaming of getting beat. But if we lose, I'll go home and root like hell for Pittsburgh in the series."

Seven years ago he was managing Asheville, N.C., of the Southern League and when he was named Reds manager Oct. 9, 1969, local newspaper headlines asked "Sparky

Who?"

Since clinching the National League West four weeks ago, Sparky has enjoyed the luxury of "spot-resting" his regulars and he figures that everybody except Pete Rose, who insists on playing every day, "is totally rested."

"Our pitchers are even more rested," he says. "I've never seen 'em more ready."

He added that any strike action by an individual team "simply would mean the end of the season for that team."

Broncos beat Pack 23-13 with Ramsey

DENVER (UPI) — Reserve quarterback Steve Ramsey, thrust into action when injuries depleted the Denver backfield, threw 10 yards to rookie Jack Dobbin for a touchdown and Jim Turner kicked three field goals Monday night in leading the Broncos to a 23-13 win over the Green Bay Packers.

Linebacker Randy Grashar scored an insurance touchdown with 40 seconds to play on a 4-yard interception return.

Green Bay scored on a four-yard pass from John Hadl to running back Willard Harrel and a one-yard plunge by John Brockington late in the fourth quarter. Dave Purello, a defensive end forced to placekick because of a leg injury suffered by Chester Marcol, missed the first extra point but connected the second time.

what's what

L. M. Boyd

Sixty-eight per cent of all the unmarried fellows live in cities. But young ladies in search of same find it much more difficult to meet those eligibles there. Our Love and War man says that's why most girls who move from town to country marry within 18 months. The dirt-road boys are more accessible.

A POUND of uranium is only about as big as a golf ball.

ADD TO HIS other credits the fact that Benjamin Franklin was the fellow who first shipped rhubarb into this country.

"SUPERCILIOUS" comes from Latin words meaning "over" and "eyelid." Something like "high brow." You know how the haughty raise their eyebrows to show disdain? That's supercilious.

FIRST CHILD

Q. "Name the first child of European parents to be born in North America."

A. That was a lad named Snorro. In 1008 or thereabouts. His father was Thorfinn Karlsefni. His mother, Gudrid, was the widow of Leif Ericson's brother.

Q. "HOW MANY door-step babies survive?"

A. You mean motherless foundlings? Sixty per cent live a year or longer.

Q. "WE CAN SAY 'fruit factory' five times quickly, but bet you can't say five times quickly 'Strick's Trick Stop.'"

A. I give up.

GIFTS

Just because you can identify every color you see, doesn't mean you have a natural talent for painting. But if you have the gift known as absolute pitch in music, that does indeed mean you could turn into a violinist or a pianist, if properly trained. Scholars who study such matters say they can't account for the difference.

DO YOU KNOW why some scholars think the polar bear is evolving into a sea animal like the whale? Because said bear when swimming doesn't kick with its hind legs as other animals do. The penguin when swimming doesn't kick with its legs as other birds do, either. Suppose it's evolving into a mackerel?

COUNT VOLTA sounds like a character in a horror movie, doesn't he? But no, he was the bright fellow who invented the electric battery. Make mention of this because a client asks the origin of the word volta. It was devised to honor his count, bless him.

Flood storage on Snake pushed by Idaho panel

BLISS (UPI) — Any major projects proposing use of Snake River water should be accompanied by a proposal for flood water storage to provide minimum needs during the summer shortage months, Vernon Ravnscroft said today.

Ravnscroft, executive chairman of the Idaho Carey Act Development Association, said Congress and the State of Idaho have been asked to establish a policy to that effect.

He said it would include any new irrigation projects, pending river classifications or energy generation license.

The request was made through a resolution approved by the Association at a meeting last week and was submitted to the Idaho Congressional delegation, the governor, the Department of Water Resources, the University of Idaho Water Research Institute and the Bureau of Land Management.

"In the resolutions, we called attention to the basic premises of federal land law which says land should be placed in its highest and best use," Ravnscroft said.

Pointing out there is a growing awareness of the need for more food and fiber, Ravnscroft said there are pending development applications for a half million acres under the Carey/Act Desert Land Law—and exchange authority.

"All of this can take place using private initiative and private capital," he said.

"Our request on commitment of Snake River Water applies to minimum needs of the projects during the critical months of July and August.

Idaho wheat yield shows slight dip

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's 1975 wheat yield is showing a slight drop from last year now that harvest is nearly completed.

The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service estimates that total harvest will exceed 60 million bushels of both spring and winter wheat this year, despite a decline in the number of acres planted in wheat.

Idaho acreages planted for this year totaled 880,000, a drop from 970,000 planted last year. The spring wheat acreage of 470,000 was the same as last year. The service said the wheat crop will be about one per cent less than last year.

Sheep expansion program planned

DENVER (UPI) — The American Sheep Producers Council says it will launch an expansion program next January in an attempt to increase production of lamb and wool over the next 10 years.

Richard D. Biglin, ASPC executive director, said sheep producers were encouraged by a recent relaxation of toxicants to wort off predators, but they believe there are many things they can do on their own to expand the industry.

"The expansion program has signified the industry's attempt to coordinate a program of research, information and public relations that will revitalise the sheep business in the United States," Biglin said.

Biglin said a task force had been formed to coordinate the expansion program. The committee will focus on marketing of sheep products, research, education and developing a labor program, he said.

Jack Armstrong, assistant director of the Farmers Cooperative Service in Washington, D.C., said at a Denver meeting of the task force that the industry hoped to limit its marketing program.

Cricket meet set

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will hold a two-day meeting on the Mormon cricket problem Oct. 15-16 in Twin Falls.

The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service will be in charge of the conference and a scientist from the Rangeland Insects Laboratory in Bozeman, Mont., will be in attendance, according to Sen. James A. McClure, Idaho.

T.W. Edminster, administrator of the Agricultural Research Service, said in a prepared statement in response to a letter from McClure, "We concur with your assessment that the Mormon cricket problem appears to be worsening. Currently we are assessing the possibility of a shift within our research program to deal with this problem."

Research project focuses on wheat

BOISE (UPI) — Sprout damaged wheat, of deep concern for some Idaho wheat producers and handlers this year, is the subject of a research project seeking new food sources.

The National Wheat Institute is funding the study at Colorado State University which the institute hopes will result in the development of new varieties of food products, rich in protein and vitamins A and C.

Harold West, administrator of the Idaho Wheat Commission, said today wheat protein can be produced more economically than meat protein, on which many people depend for their protein requirements, and is increased substantially by the process of sprouting.

The quantity of these vitamins produced by sprouting, under varying conditions, is unknown," West said.

He added that determining the amounts of vitamins A and C will be one of the prime objectives of the research program. Results of the study are to be released in two years.

He said Pacific Northwest wheat producers occasionally encounter sprout damage in their crop. Wheat will sprout prematurely when rains occur immediately prior to or during harvest.

Japan and other Asian countries—the principal users of Northwest white wheat—will not accept sprouted wheat. The damaged wheat usually is sold at reduced prices for livestock feed.

supplied by meat protein.

The Idaho wheat official commented that vitamins A and C, frequently deficient in diets of Americans and people in foreign countries, are produced when wheat is sprouted.

TF men join in meeting

TWIN FALLS — Ralph Olmstead, Twin Falls, participated in the 33rd annual meeting of the National Livestock and Meat Board in Chicago.

Also in attendance was J.

Mark Swan, Rogerson, director of the meat board, serving as representative of the National Live Stock Producers Association.

Olmstead is also a director of the meat board, representing the livestock and meat industry of the state of Idaho. He is also a member of the Board's Nutrition Research Committee.

Swan is a member of the board's Revenue Development Committee.

Pair listed

RUPERT — Two Magic Valley men are among nine Idahoans listed among new members of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Local dairymen among the 1,119 persons joining the world's largest dairy breed registry organization are Michael Burt, Rupert, and Jim Folkings, Buhl.

Idaho's new members join the ranks of over 26,000 people actively breeding registered Holstein-Friesian cattle.

Department of Water Resources, the University of Idaho Water Research Institute and the Bureau of Land Management.

"In the resolutions, we called attention to the basic premises of federal land law which says land should be placed in its highest and best use," Ravnscroft said.

Pointing out there is a growing awareness of the need for more food and fiber, Ravnscroft said there are pending development applications for a half million acres under the Carey/Act Desert Land Law—and exchange authority.

"All of this can take place using private initiative and private capital," he said.

"Our request on commitment of Snake River Water applies to minimum needs of the projects during the critical months of July and August.

Minico buffers menaced

RUPERT — The buffer zones around Minidoka County municipalities could be cut when the cities and county meet on areas of city impact.

Any change in the buffer zone could affect zoning of land use, the most controversial part of the Minidoka city-county comprehensive plan.

County Commissioner Elmer Ketterling attacked the one-mile area around cities Thursday at a county planning commission meeting.

"We're giving the cities too much room where they might never adopt," Ketterling said.

The "embattled" land use provision is a recommendation that "no residential dwellings be allowed, at present, on less than the 20 acres in an area zoned as agricultural." Exceptions listed included already platted subdivisions, parcels ruled not economical to farm, and parcels proven economical to farm on less than 20 acres.

That recommendation has drawn heavy fire from county residents, who have charged it would prohibit residential construction on small parcels and interfere with the owner's right to use and dispose of his land.

Proponents on the land use subcommittee have defended the provision by saying that it does not prohibit residences on small parcels, but is only intended to define agricultural use as a minimum 20-acre parcel instead of the five acres designated by the Idaho Code.

A variance from the county planning commission would be required, however, according to Planning Chairman Howard Icenible. Also chairman of the land use subcommittee, Icenible has commented that residential construction would not be hampered in the buffer zone, which presently is rural but is foreseen as possible annexation to one of the cities.

Despite public pressure the land use subcommittee has not eliminated or changed the 20-acre requirement. At its September meeting the subcommittee agreed to "clarify" it by a new draft.

The clarification is expected to be considered at the subcommittee's meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 at the Soil Conservation Service office in Rupert.

Buffer zones could run up to five miles from the city boundaries. They are contemplated to designate the area of city impact that might be annexed to the city in the 20 years of the comprehensive plan.

Minidoka County has recognized the one-mile buffer, but the cities and county must meet to determine officially the area of impact and the effect upon the buffer zone during the next 20 years.

Ketterling contended Thursday that the buffer zone should cover only the area likely to be taken in within 2-3 years "and then expand it."

He said it would take Rupert 20 years to effect a 20 per cent growth and take in the land now considered in the buffer zone. Meanwhile the city is getting 25 per cent of the fee for building inspections.

"Why give them that when they might never take that in?" asked of annexation possibilities.

County Building Inspector William McClung agreed, commenting that Rupert has a buffer zone of about 3,600 acres because of the large peninsula of unincorporated land partially surrounded by annexed areas.

"Our basic problem is sewage and water," McClung said. "They have to be able to provide those."

Ketterling blamed city lobbyists for the present situation. He said Minidoka County differs from areas where cities can expect rapid growth.

Ketterling proposed that the county agree to "what they figure their growth will be in five years. I think, when we draw that impact study, we ought to draw that down."
